By John Flowerdew. In the document Education: Vision the MEN has misrepresented the concept of bilingualism in the following three ways: 1 it defines bilingualism as the speaking of English, thereby backgrounding all Colombian native languages Spanish included ; 2 it attempts to homogenize by reducing recognition of language ability to one arbitrary standardized form and by adopting rigid teaching models that are culturally insensitive at best and irrelevant at worst; and 3 it falsely claims to equally provide opportunities of access to this form of bilingual Discourse in English Language Education to all citizens of the nation. ReturntoBookPage.BenneR. Glasgow: Collins. It goes through the various definitions and some models of the communicative competence especially those most common models of Hymes and Neo-Vygotskian theory and classroom education.

LinguisticsandEducation53–4–Mediatinglanguagelearning:Teacherinte passage highlights that only a very small portion of the Colombian population is able to function socially in English.
Pardo for example, raises awareness about the linguistic diversity in Colombia and illustrates the hierarchical stratification to which languages are subjected by means of different social acts.
